What influence can song lyrics have and what hidden messages are there?

Songs are more than just a melody. Their lyrics have the power to awaken emotions, shape opinions, and spark thought. They often reflect social issues, personal experiences, or political messages. While some statements are clearly recognizable, others hide between the lines. Song lyrics can carry conscious messages about topics like love, protest, or identity, but they can also contain subconscious content - such as stereotypical gender roles, consumer behavior or ideological stances.

Überschrift: Taylor Swift - Anti-Hero

I have this thing where I get older but just never wiser.
Midnights become my afternoons.
When my depression works the graveyard shift,
All of the people I've ghosted stand there in the room.
I should not be left to my own devices.
They come with prices and vices, I end up in crisis.
(Tale as old as time)
I wake up screaming from dreaming.
One day I'll watch as you're leaving,
'Cause you got tired of my scheming.
(For the last time)
It's me, hi, I'm the problem, it's me.
At tea time, everybody agrees.
I'll stare directly at the sun but never in the mirror.
It must be exhausting always rooting for the anti-hero.

Despite aging, the speaker feels they have not gained wisdom or maturity, indicating a cycle of repeating past mistakes or failing to learn from experiences. This can reflect feelings of frustration and self-awareness about one's shortcomings.

Emotional State: "Ghosted people standing in the room"

The imagery of "ghosted people standing in the room" paints a picture of haunting memories or unresolved personal issues. It reflects the speaker's emotional state of feeling burdened by past actions, guilt, or relationships that have ended without closure.
