

Essay writing - writing an introduction

Name:

Date:

Read these introductions. In what aspects do they differ?

Introduction 1:

Growing up, Sarah always dreamed of becoming a lawyer. However, when she shared her aspirations with her family, they laughed and told her it was not a job for a woman. Sarah's story is not unique. Women around the world are constantly told what they can and cannot do based on their gender. It's time to challenge these outdated ideas and fight for the rights that every woman deserves.

Introduction 2:

Did you know that women earn only 77 cents for every dollar earned by men? This wage gap is just one example of the many inequalities that women face in today's society. Despite making up half of the global population, women are still fighting for basic rights such as equal pay, access to education, and reproductive freedom.

Introduction 3:

Some may argue that women have already achieved equality, but the reality is far from it. Women continue to be underrepresented in leadership positions, face higher rates of domestic violence, and are often denied access to healthcare. Dismissing the fight for women's rights as a thing of the past only perpetuates the problem.

Introduction 4:

"Feminism is the radical notion that women are human beings." This quote by Cheri Kramarae highlights the core of the women's rights movement. Women are not asking for special treatment, but simply for the recognition of their basic human rights. It's time to challenge the systems that have held women back for far too long.

What are the different styles of introductions?

Which introduction uses an anecdote to highlight the issue of gender inequality?

- Introduction 2 Introduction 3 Introduction 1 Introduction 4

Which introduction presents a statement of fact regarding the wage gap between men and women?

- Introduction 4 Introduction 1 Introduction 2 Introduction 3

Which introduction uses a quote to convey the essence of the women's rights movement?

- Introduction 1 Introduction 4 Introduction 3 Introduction 2

Which introduction provides a counterargument to the claim that women have already achieved equality?

- Introduction 3 Introduction 2 Introduction 4 Introduction 1

Which introduction challenges the notion that women's rights issues are a thing of the past?

- Introduction 1 Introduction 2 Introduction 4 Introduction 3

Writing an introduction

There are different types of introductions and depending on your topic, some might be a better fit than others.

Before you start writing an essay, it is helpful to consider which type of introduction will be most interesting and captivating for your audience.

You can also start with a definition, a historical note or statistics...there are many options.

Practice writing your own introductions

Write two different types of introductions on a topic of your choice
